This matter was fixed on 15.01.2016 for non prosecution despite non appearance of the appellant's counsel, seven days' time was allowed in the interest of justice for compliance, thereafter, the matter was fixed on 11.08.2016 again for non prosecution when also learned counsel for the appellant was called absent but on that date the work was suspended on account of Quetta incident, however, again two weeks' time was granted in absence of appellant's counsel. The matter was again fixed on 13.01.2017 for non-prosecution when two weeks' more time was granted but on that date also appellant's counsel was called absent. Lastly, this case was fixed on 06.09.2017 when though learned counsel for the appellant was present but the matter was again fixed for non prosecution but at his request two weeks' time was granted. Despite providing various opportunities for compliance, the appellant has failed to comply with the objections and again matter is fixed for non prosecution. Today we called the matter twice but neither the representative of the appellant nor their counsel are present which shows that they have lost interest in this case.
