Petitioner's grievances are only against private respondents. Petitioner perhaps has some business disputes with these private respondents who are issuing threats for dire consequences for recovery of certain amount alleged to be outstanding against the petitioner. These factual controversies could hardly be entertained in these proceedings as no writ can be issued against private respondents. In case respondents are threatening the petitioner of dire consequences he may take appropriate action either by lodging FIR or in case of its refusal by moving application before the Court having jurisdiction in this regard. The petition is accordingly dismissed.
