Mr. Moula Bux Bhutto for petitioners.

Learned counsel has raised grievance against private respondents who are issuing threats to the petitioners. He submits that the concerned authorities before whom certain applications were filed are not taking any action.

I have heard the learned counsel. The remedy in this regard against the private respondents lies with the District & Sessions Judge before whom petitioners may move application under section 22-A Cr.P.C. and if a case is made out appropriate orders may be passed. The petition as such is disposed of along with listed application. The petitioners however may approach relevant forum for redress of their grievance. In the meantime official respondents shall be responsible for protection of the petitioners in accordance with law.
